What is CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrup, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.
"Castoria is well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me." H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
"The use of 'Castoria' is so universal and its merits so well known that it seems a work of supererogation to endorse it. Few are the intelligent families who do not keep Castoria within easy reach." CARLOS MARTIN, D. D., New York City.
"For several years I have recommended your 'Castoria,' and shall always continue to do so as it has invariably produced beneficial results." EDWIN F. PARKER, M. D., 1215 Street and 7th Ave., New York City.

Government.

Mr. Hartman gives us an article this week on government. Read it, then re-read it. It will do you good. It is a well known fact that we must govern if we teach. If our government is poor, our teaching is also poor. Order is something we can not do without. "Order is heaven's first law."

Government is the exercise of authority. A vast amount of our school management consists in good government. The teacher should always manage and govern for the good of his pupils. If he do this, the pupils will soon find it out, and all the bad feeling and antagonism that otherwise would exist are blotted out and no longer remain in intelligent, good-meaning children.

The teacher before trying to govern others must surely be able to govern himself. There are so many who are deficient in this one part of their qualifications. They do not have that self controlling and governing power over themselves that they should have before trying to exercise it over others.

A teacher can not always govern by hiring, persuading, or exhorting; though some of these things may be proper to do at times. But a person must not be deceived and think they are governing when they do this. This is in no way good government. Some teachers have very good success in offering rewards for good deportment and regular attendance. Although I am not a strong advocate of this method. The teacher must be master; will must be law, and there should be no doubt in his mind or the minds of his pupils. Although this is true, the teacher must not necessarily make an exhibition of his authority. At least it is a bad thing for teachers to boast to their pupils or dare them to transgress. There should be no question as to the right and power of the teacher to govern. He must not be too free to exhibit that power; should not exercise that power with good reason; should never do so simply to show authority.

The teacher must be impartial. This is one of the most essential things in school government. The teacher should learn to treat all pupils alike. The dull and bright and the rich and poor should all have the same kind word of greeting. How many times we have noticed this was not the case. Fellow teachers, let us guard against partiality in our schools. We should always be competent and able to mete out justice. We should know when to punish and how to punish; and when punishment is inflicted for an offense, it should be in such a manner that the pupil would have no inclination to have it repeated. We have noticed that some teachers could govern by their manner and look better than others could by using the rod frequently. Let the teacher be orderly and set the example, and the school is more likely to be orderly. "As is the teacher so is the school." Order is essential. No school will do good work without good order and good government. Keep good order. By all means, keep good order. "Do well your part, there all the honor lies."

Weyler's Withdrawal.

It is announced that General Weyler will resign the command of the Spanish army. He has not been defeated by the Cubans. Nor are the obstacles in his way apparently greater than in the former campaign.

The real cause of his resignation or recall, therefore, is to be found in the force of public opinion. In the former campaign in the former Cuban revolt his outrages were not generally known, and our administration at the time, though sympathizing with the Cubans' struggle for freedom, and though it was headed by so experienced and successful a soldier as General Grant, did not feel justified in risking a rupture with Spain in order to help the Cubans.

Now, however, with the stories of Weyler's fiendish outrages ringing in their ears, the Americans rise as one man and demand that our government aid the Cubans. Fired by righteous indignation, they put humanity above international law. And though Congress still lies in garrulous sloth, public opinion has done its work.

For Spain has seen the handwriting on the wall. Protests and delay on the part of our Congress can not blind her to her danger. And forced to choose between Weyler and the slim chance of holding Cuba, Spain dares not hesitate.

The Venezuela case furnishes another example of the irresistible force of public opinion. The Salisbury ministry took its stand on a refusal to arbitrate the question. It would unlose the dogs of war before it submitted its claims to the judgment of outsiders.

The English people, however, in spite of their excessive national pride, felt the weakness of their cause. With confidence in the justice of their cause, no people would resist more obstinately than the English. But the United States would not have yielded its point. The public opinion of England, therefore, in forcing the government to a complete breakdown, prevented a terrible war.

Public opinion is to-day master of the world. Informed by the press, it is perennially at work. Against it no government can stand. It is a dangerous weapon, and may sometimes be wielded in a wrong cause. But as the world grows older fanaticism and demagoguery become less common.

Public opinion becomes more and more the reformer of abuses. Already strong enough to fight war itself, public opinion will soon become the omnipotent and omniscient weapon of civilization.—K. C. Times.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gundersen, Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last for hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Crapo's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1. 1

That splendid and influential paper, the Columbia Herald, says of Hon. J. M. Seibert's candidacy for State Auditor:

The announcement that State Auditor Seibert will be a candidate for reelection is one assurance of strength in the next Democratic State ticket. His unimpeachable record, together with his long acquaintance and his many qualities of political leadership, will be of great value at a time when the necessity of the party making the best possible nominations is generally recognized. No public official has performed more efficient or faithful service; and, while there are many who believe him to be the best material for Governor, few will question the propriety of his continuance in the office he has so ably filled.

During the winter of 1893, F. M. Martin, of Long Beach, West Va., contracted a severe cold which left him with a cough. In speaking of how he cured it he says: "I used several kinds of cold syrup but found no relief until I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved me almost instantly, and in a short time brought about complete cure." When troubled with a cough or cold use this remedy and you will not find it necessary to try several kinds before you get relief. It has been in the market for over twenty years and constantly grown in favor and popularity. For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by all dealers.
